Group thankful for blessing

By Ednan C. Tancos Jr.

WHEN THEY LEARNED THAT their group's founder, Erlan Peñaflorida, had been chosen CNN's Hero of the Year, leaders of Dynamic Team Co. (DTC) were busy making new volunteers for its "pushcart classroom" classrooms, the same work that gave Peñaflorida worldwide recognition.

Peñaflorida's 20-year-old student, Glenn Mae, was at the group's office in Cebu City celebrating the making yesterday afternoon when she learned about the good news after checking CNN's website.

In her Cebu home, Peñaflorida's mother, Lucita, 46, had been praying and was overwhelmed on hearing her son had won.

"I was very, very happy. I kept jumping with joy," she said the day. "The Lord blessed my prayers."

"We are very thankful that God gave us this blessing. I am very proud of my brother," Glenn Mae said.

On Thursday, Peñaflorida, 38, flew to the United States to attend CNN's awarding ceremony, being one of its 10 honorees for 2009.

WHILE SOME OF THE COUNTRY'S biggest presidential aspirants may be scrambling to win the support of Manny Pacquiao, officials in the very province where boxing's biggest superstar plans to receive his burial for a seat in Congress appear to have ignored him.

In Mindanao's Sarangani province, Pacquiao's camp yesterday accused provincial officials for snubbing his arrival on Sunday.

They put up no welcome banners and none of them showed up to congratulate Pacquiao when he spoke and appeared to condemn in jobs him in his fight to combat poverty and protect

Peñaflorida tops network's online voting

LOS ANGELES—A Filipino street educator has been named the 2009 CNN Hero of the Year for starting a "pushcart classroom" in the Philippines to bring education to poor children as an alternative to gang membership.

The selection of Erlan Peñaflorida was revealed on Saturday night by CNN's Anderson Cooper at the conclusion of the 2009 CNN Heroes: An All-Star Tribute at the Kodak Theater in Hollywood.

The gala event, taped before an audience of 3,000, premiered on Thanksgiving, Nov. 26, at 9 p.m. (ET/PT) on the global network of CNN.

As a child, Peñaflorida picked school over gang life in Cebu City and vowed to create a way for other children to make the same choice.

He created a program that brings books to children in slums and on the streets, and the 30,000 members of his Dynamic Team Co. have brought reading, writing and hygiene to 1,500 youngsters.

Lakas-Kampi faces 'big bang' crash

By Amanda Chavella

THE COUNTRY'S DOMINANT political coalition—the Lakas-Kampi—fears disintegration as its leaders admit that up to 40 percent of its cadres have decided to join two major parties, the Liberal Party (LP) and the Nacionalista Party (NP) that are staging a revival following their abolition by the Marcos dictatorship in 1972.

Should the defections turn into a landslide, it is danger of following the fate of the "big bang" crash of the patronage-led LDP (Lakas ng Demokratikong Pilipino), the political machine of then Speaker Roman Mito Jr. in the 1992 presidential election at the end of the term of President Corason Aquino, who did not seek reelection.

This grim picture of the coalition's prospects in the May 2010 elections was presented by Senate Majority Leader Juan Miguel Zubel, the party's vice

OFW's kin decry slow repatriation of her remains

JOY TRINIDAD—THE BODIES OF A FILIPINO woman who died in a vehicular accident here in September has appeared in the Philippine government's list in bringing her remains back to the country.

Melanie Cortes, 46, of Tuguegarao, Ilocos, died after she was hit by a car driven by an Iraqi while she was crossing the street at midnight on Sept. 8.

Cortes, a seamstress, suffered head injury and fractured the neck bones, according to the death certificate issued by the health authority of the Division of Abu Dhabi.

Almost three months after the accident, Cortes' body is still at Qaddafi City Hospital, though repatriation proceedings had yet to begin.

"We are urging industry as well as Department of Foreign Affairs (DFA) officials in Manila to immediately repatriate her body. We are saddened by the slow process. We don't want the delay anymore," Clippie Serapion, the sister-in-law, said yesterday.

Serapion said she received a call from the hospital asking her family to get the body.

The hospital would be forced to bury the remains here if the family would be asked to pay, a possibility she was unwilling to do. The body is not repatriated before the end of the month, she said.

Serapion said the victim's daughter in the Philippines, Camille Cortes, had forwarded a signed power of attorney to the DFA in Manila on Oct. 7.

"It is so sad to note that it took time for our government officials to act on our request. The police investigation here was over and the case already made a ruling last September. How come the repatriation proceeding has not been started yet? This is injustice. It is not fair," Serapion said.

Cortes, a member of five, was the sole breadwinner of the family since her husband, a diabetic, could no longer work.

Philippine Consul General in the UAE Noel Serapion said on Friday that the company had already asked the DFA for the necessary documents in repatriation proceedings could begin.

New import rules on bulk cargo take effect in Jan.

THE GOVERNMENT HAS MOVED TO JAN 4 next year the effectivity of the new rules and procedures on imported shipments involving bulk and break-bulk cargoes.

To facilitate the release of bulk and break-bulk cargoes from the Bureau of Customs, Administrative Order (AO) No. 212-A and its implementing rules require a report of recorded arriving companies on each import shipment.

Under the new rules, recorded arriving companies are to submit a report on the quantity, quality, grade, price/value, and classification of bulk and break-bulk cargoes.

The Interagency Committee for Accreditation of Cargo Surveying Companies earlier announced that the new rules covering multi-cargo shipments would take effect on Jan. 12.

Without transparency and other stakeholders, however, appealed to the committee to move the date of effectivity of the new rules to January 2010.

President Mañagopal Arroyo issued AO 212-A to ensure the payment of correct duties and taxes on bulk and break-bulk cargo shipments while simplifying import procedures.

Inquirer president to chair 22nd PAC

By Arlene L. Ballesteros
Inquirer President Arlene L. Ballesteros will chair the 22nd Philippine Advertising Congress (PAC) on November 24-25 at the Manila Convention Center.

According to Ballesteros, the PAC is a sign of the changing times. "There used to be a time when advertising was just a means to an end, but now it's become a way of life," she said. "The emphasis on delivering practical benefits from creative campaigns began with the transition to the digital economy, which also gave the event its theme: creative solutions to the country and to the industry of the PAC association in the Philippines."

Ballesteros also said the success of the 22nd PAC is a testament to the industry's growth. "The industry is growing, and we are growing with it," she said. "We are looking forward to organizing the 23rd PAC in 2011 in the Philippines. We hope to see you there."

Manila Convention Center
The 22nd PAC will be held at the Manila Convention Center, which is the largest gathering of creative minds in the industry. The event is organized by the Philippine Advertising Congress (PAC) Association, which is a non-profit organization that promotes the industry and its members.

Originally titled to be held in Baguio, the congress was moved to Manila after typhoons battered the country in September and October. However, the organizers decided to proceed with the event to show their commitment to the industry.

The organizers also decided to move the event to Manila to show their commitment to the industry. The event is organized by the Philippine Advertising Congress (PAC) Association, which is a non-profit organization that promotes the industry and its members.

Camille will be the keynote speaker at the event. She will be speaking about the future of the industry and the role of advertising in the economy. She will also be presenting an award to the best advertising campaign of the year.

"Erap doesn't exercise and I always say I am the most experienced among the presidential candidates," said Erando, whose knees have been replaced with prostheses.

"I've been a local candidate for 17 years, I've been a senator for five years, I've been a vice president for six years and alone and a lot as president, so, more or less I know the overall problems of our country," he said.

Erando said he would like his credentials acknowledged before some on Manila Bay Nov. 30. He said the day would have significant importance for the nation.

Erando said he was prepared for challenges in his candidacy. "We have invited leaders such as, dozens of law schools, dozens of NGOs, etc.," he stated.

Erando said the current platform presented by President Mananghat-Arroyo could not run again, citing a constitutional ban on a president seeking reelection.

However, Erando said that the Constitution allowed for a sitting president.

Unilab's manufacturing subsidiary gets EU-GMP certification

Amherst Laboratories, Unilab's state-of-the-art manufacturing subsidiary in Mampayan, Laguna, has obtained the European Union Good Manufacturing Practice (EU-GMP) certification — a first for any pharmaceutical manufacturing facility in the Philippines.

The certification came through the European Medicines Agency (EMA), a decentralized body of the EU which promotes and promotes public health through the evaluation of medicines being sold in EU member states.

The EU-GMP certification signifies Amherst's compliance with EU standards on the quality, safety, and efficacy of the medicines it produces, which stresses Amherst's world-class status.

Significant in a license to sell, the EMA certificate gives Amherst the opportunity to manufacture for and export its products to member states of the EU, as well as Iceland, Liechtenstein, and Norway.

Amherst Laboratories is a 24,000 sqm facility with state-of-the-art manufacturing equipment such as a computerized process control monitoring system and gas sensors, clean room systems for production equipment and pipelines, all designed to ensure the highest level of product quality.

QUALITY CERTIFICATION The EMA certificate signifies Amherst's compliance with EU standards on the quality, safety, and efficacy of the medicines it produces, which stresses Amherst's world-class status.

Because of Amherst's conformity to world-class standards of quality in manufacturing, consumers can rest assured that the medicines they buy are safe and effective — a concrete but less demonstrative of Unilab's promise to provide localized quality healthcare to consumers.

WORLD-CLASS STATUS Amherst Laboratories, Unilab's manufacturing subsidiary in Mampayan, Laguna, is the first in the Philippines to obtain EU-GMP certification.

Fundraising for Maynoy

In Union City, California, a crowd of 100 mostly Filipino attended a fundraising event for Maynoy.

A highlight was a musical performance by a group of young people, who, speaking in English, thanked the Filipino community and urged them to continue their support for their campaign.

The rally was the third in a series organized by the US Filipino for Maynoy Movement, whose leaders include former members of President Mananghat-Arroyo.

With support from Jim Carney, who is a member of the US House of Representatives, the rally was the third in a series organized by the US Filipino for Maynoy Movement.

Erando said he was prepared for challenges in his candidacy. "We have invited leaders such as, dozens of law schools, dozens of NGOs, etc.," he stated.

Erando said the current platform presented by President Mananghat-Arroyo could not run again, citing a constitutional ban on a president seeking reelection.

However, Erando said that the Constitution allowed for a sitting president.

"People are asking why am I running again," he said. "My term was constitutionally changed and I was constitutionally removed so I am unable to implement my previous program."

Erando said he would not run for back in the year, even if the issue he had to go to jail. "I have no response when they're done for me," he explained.

He said his party, Powering the People's Philippines (PPP), will come up with a complete electoral slate, including his son, Jose, Jr., and his wife, Gloria. He said the party would also include a complete slate of senators, congressmen, and local officials.

When churchmen campaign

HOW DO WE TELL THE ACTION OF CHURCHMEN who hold positions of authority, from the pope on down, and who are not, in the American political system, to support positions not of their own? They say with a church organization campaign against them in the 20th century—the Catholic Church, for instance, against legalizing the carrying of guns (see NPI, especially known as the Pro-life Institute) and so on.

An obvious time approach, legislation or presidential campaign who support the fall that should be taken. The churchmen, however, who might be called a "Catholic vote"—even if it itself is not before that such a phenomenon exists.

There are two legitimate ways of looking at pressure from churchmen in the context of 1990 and 2000.

The first is the constitutional approach. The American people have the right to elect their own representatives to the Congress and the President. They have every right to campaign what they believe to be morally correct, and if they might be wrong, I am always convinced that others are even less so. I am always convinced that others are even less so.

Second, the churchmen who do not agree to follow their own conscience should be in a state of mind to make a decision about it.

As a churchman, myself, I have seen many from the Catholic Church. I would offer to anyone who is a churchman should not see the church as a political organization. I would offer to anyone who is a churchman should not see the church as a political organization. I would offer to anyone who is a churchman should not see the church as a political organization.

Why Ang Ladlad should thank the Comelec

AFTER READING THE DECISION OF THE SUPREME COURT in the case of the petition of Ang Ladlad for accreditation as a political party, I was left with a sense of relief. The Supreme Court has decided that the party is not a political party, and therefore, it is not a political party. This is a good thing, because it means that the party is not a political party, and therefore, it is not a political party.

Supreme Court of the Philippines has decided that the party is not a political party, and therefore, it is not a political party. This is a good thing, because it means that the party is not a political party, and therefore, it is not a political party.

What the Supreme Court has decided is that the party is not a political party, and therefore, it is not a political party. This is a good thing, because it means that the party is not a political party, and therefore, it is not a political party.

Prior to the Supreme Court's decision, the party was a political party, and therefore, it was a political party. This is a good thing, because it means that the party is not a political party, and therefore, it is not a political party.

CONCLUSIONS

MANIFESTO

The Partido ng Manggagawa at Magsasaka (PMM) was organized to address the need for a political party to represent the interests of the workers and peasants in the Philippines. It is a radical departure from the country's traditional party politics which, for over 100 years, have been dominated by political groups organized and led by the land-owning class or the hacenderos, the traders and later, by big businessmen.

The PMM is the only political party adopting a platform that emphasizes the importance of the workers and the peasants in nation-building and the need to articulate and fight for the interests of these sectors as an integral part of the economic, social and political development of the country.

The PMM rejects patronage politics. Our leaders should not be beholden to big businessmen and landlords. Elections in the country have been turned into a vaudeville where candidates do not present to the people their program of government, rather they have in tow actors and actresses to endorse them and to entertain the crowd. Enough of this political circus.

The proscription of political dynasties, although enshrined in our Constitution, is merely given lip service by our politicians. Dynasticism is prevalent in local and national politics. Wives and children of mayors become mayors; the wife succeeds the husband or vice-versa, in Congress. The Senate is now composed of siblings, actors and actresses; the Presidency is turning out to be not an exception. Dynasticism is reminiscent of the "divine rights of kings" that those whose genes were inherited from a king or queen should, by God's will, become kings or queens.

The PMM calls on all Filipinos to take politics seriously and not be awayed by mere entertainment or better progeny.

Having defined its membership as comprising principally of the workers and peasants, the PMM is the first major attempt by these sectors to broaden their struggle for a more equitable distribution of wealth through active participation in local and national politics. The organized workers in the last seven decades have relied mostly in unionism and collective bargaining to raise their wages and improve their work conditions. Not enjoying the same rights as the workers, the peasants have relied mainly on mass rallies and demonstrations to influence policy-making. Indeed, from 1930 to the 70's there were sporadic peasants' revolts led by the communist parties whose organized force was mainly in the countryside.

We proclaim our party's vision of empowered workers and peasants shaping their own lives. As the political party of workers and peasants, we claim their historic role in nation-building.

Wherefore, PMM presents this Program of Government to elevate the level of political debate and for the citizenry to make intelligent choice.

PROGRAM OF GOVERNMENT

• NATIONALISM AND PATRIOTISM

The Party honors and adheres to the nationalist and patriotic aspirations of our national heroes: Jose Rizal, Andres Bonifacio, Apolinario Mabini, Emilio Aguinaldo and the numerous men and women who fought and died in defending the independence and sovereignty of the Philippines against colonizers and invaders. The Party is aware that many of the ills that plague our nation stem from lack of patriotism.

• ONE NATION OF FILIPINOS

The Party believes that Christians, Muslims and the indigenous peoples belong to the same race, sharing the same culture and aspiring for one identity as Filipinos. And as Filipinos, they are common stakeholders in the economic and social development of the country.

• EQUITABLE DISTRIBUTION OF WEALTH

The Party commits itself to a more equitable distribution of wealth, increased rights of workers and peasants, promotion of welfare state, adequate government funding for health care and education, rationalized ownership of key and vital industries, strong regulations to curb monopolies, greater participation of unions, peasants organizations, non-government organizations (NGOs) and peoples organizations (POs) in all levels of government.

• REPRESENTATIVE DEMOCRACY

The PMM adheres to the tenets of representative democracy and affirms that those who comprise the majority shall equally be represented in Congress and in all policy-making bodies of the government. All Filipinos, regardless of social and economic status, religion and ethnic background are equal stakeholders in the quest for national development and therefore must have meaningful participation in the decision-making. They must be guaranteed equal access to information through formal education and the media.

• GOOD GOVERNANCE

The PMM rejects and denounces corruption in government in all levels and activities. The President, Senators, Congressmen, Governors, Mayors and all government employees must learn to serve as models of honesty and integrity. All those engaged in corrupt practices should be held accountable for their offense.

• PEACE AND UNITY

The PMM shall strive for peace and unity. It abhors violence as a means to achieve personal or collective political, religious, or economic objectives. It shall resolve through peaceful means the rebellion in Muslim Mindanao and the communist insurgency in some parts of the country. However, it shall not waver in using legitimate force to combat enemies of the state whose agenda is the overthrow of the government or the dismemberment of the country.

• PROTECTING THE ENVIRONMENT

The PMM believes that for the country and the world to sustain the present momentum of development and growth and to achieve better quality of life for all, there must be an uncompromising individual and collective efforts at protecting the environment. Denudation of forests, irresponsible handling of wastes, and mining activities which destroy and degrade the environment must be stopped. The goal of reducing environmental pollution must be achieved at the soonest possible time. Global warming must be urgently addressed for the present and future generations to enjoy a habitable planet. To repair the damage already done, the government shall lead and support the reduction of air-borne pollutants, reforestation of denuded mountains, planting of bakawan and other trees in mangrove areas and clean-up of rivers, lakes, estuaries and other bodies of water.

• GENDER EQUALITY

The PMM shall pursue aggressive policies to assure women of gender equality in all aspects of political, economic and social life. It shall promote the reproductive health of women.

• PEACE AND ORDER

Presently, our society is besieged by all forms of criminality, drug abuse, crimes against persons and property, as well as syndicated crimes. The Party shall unrelentingly pursue the prosecution and punishment of criminals to assure our people of drug and crime-free communities.

The Party will initiate and support legislations that strengthen the peace-keeping of the country and to make the judiciary at all levels, act expeditiously in rendering justice. Corruption in the prosecution arm of government and the judiciary shall be strictly proscribed.

• FOOD FOR EVERY FILIPINO

Agriculture should be the foremost concern of government. Our farmers' lives have not significantly improved in more than half a century. Farmer's income has continuously declined because of importation of food products from countries that subsidize their agricultural sector. With high-priced agricultural inputs such as fertilizers and insecticides, our farmers are no longer competitive with their counterparts in China, Taiwan, Vietnam, Indonesia and many other countries. Import of agricultural inputs and produce reduces the Filipino farmers' income and benefits only the traders who make hefty profits.

PMM shall introduce reforms in agriculture that are beneficial to the farmers and to attain self-sufficiency for the entire country. Among these are: improving and extending the reach of irrigation guaranteeing as well that irrigation fees should be at very minimal costs to the farmers; post-harvest facilities shall be modernized to prevent extensive losses; encouraging more liberal credit from government financial institutions; setting-up of fertilizer insecticide plants; cost of transporting produce from the farms to the consumers should be reduced by providing appropriate and readily available transport facilities; and the construction of farm-to-market roads, silo facilities, warehouses shall be considered by the government as investment for the future.

• PROTECTION AND PROMOTION OF HUMAN RIGHTS

We affirm our unwavering and unconditional support for the protection and promotion of human rights as enshrined in our Constitution and the various international treaties and conventions.

• STRONG PARTICIPATION IN U.N. AND ASEAN

The PMM believes in the solidarity and interdependence of all nations of the world even as each country exercises the right to preserve and defend its own integrity and sovereignty. It therefore commits to strengthening the United Nations in all its activities particularly the promotion of world peace, the protection of the environment and its social and humanitarian missions.

The PMM believes that the ASEAN is a vital regional organization. The Philippines must increase its participation in all its programs and must strive to make this regional organization a vehicle for peace as well as economic, social and cultural integration of its members.

As the Philippines strengthens its solidarity with the ASEAN, it must develop closer economic, political and cultural relations with its traditional partners, the US, Europe and Japan and, with even more vigor, with China, Korea and India. The Philippines must also widen its horizon by enhancing its relation with South American and African countries.

In the next six years, we shall liberate our people from the bondage of poverty!

With workers and peasants
Nothing is impossible!

Together we shall not fail!

Onward to Peace, National Unity, Economic, Social and Cultural Progress!

RUBEN D. TORRES
Secretary General

• LABOR AND EMPLOYMENT

The PMM shall work for the full and equitably remunerative employment for the country's labor force. It shall adopt policies and repeal laws that impede the growth of unions and the protection of workers' rights. PMM shall fight to assure the workers a living wage.

• HOUSING AND LAND OWNERSHIP

The PMM shall extensively use the resources of government in solving the severe housing problem in the country. Idle and unproductive lands may be expropriated and distributed at reasonable costs to low income families who do not own the land where their houses stand. Agrarian and urban land reform shall be sustained to its full conclusion. Land of the public domain shall be developed and distributed on usufruct basis to landless workers and peasants.

• EDUCATION

Education is a basic right of an individual. Everyone of school age must be given the opportunity to attend primary and secondary education at the least and university education at the most. In order to achieve this goal, PMM shall enhance government funding to public schools as well as state colleges and universities. It shall regulate private educational institutions to assure that education is not just a business undertaking.

PMM shall use government resources to provide skill-training for students who cannot pursue college education.

The curricula of all primary, secondary and tertiary educational institutions whether public or private, shall emphasize science and technology. PMM shall ensure adequate financial support for those who want to pursue science and technology courses in colleges and universities.

• OVERSEAS FILIPINO WORKERS

Overseas employment of Filipino skilled workers has short-term advantages but fraught with long-term disadvantages. All the industrialized and industrializing economies now rely on overseas recruitment of labor to sustain their economic growth. This compensates for these economies' shortage of labor. The Philippines is deploying labor overseas by the millions, thus depriving the country of skilled manpower. PMM shall work to reverse this trend by actively encouraging, through economic and fiscal policies, foreign companies to invest in the country and take advantage of our skilled labor here at home.

111 CASES REPORTED SINCE NOVEMBER 2008

Kids stone cars on NLEx

By Rowen T. Hualde

SEVEN VEHICLES were damaged last week in seven stone-dropping incidents on the South Luzon Expressway (SLEX).

Although no one was reported killed or injured, the Toll Road Management Corp. (TRMC), operator of the expressway, urged motorists to remain on the road to ensure that the perpetrators would be identified and punished.

In a statement, TRMC spokesperson Lu Malibic yesterday said that members of the Roadside Service and Intelligence Group were investigating the series of stone-dropping incidents which took place on Nov. 16. She added that the victims reported that their vehicles' windshields and windows were damaged when children, believed to be riding in stone cars, threw stones at them as they were traveling on the expressway.

Malibic said that since Nov. 19 last year, there have been 111 stone-dropping incidents reported on SLEX, nine of which took place between Marikina and the Pit.

2 men injured in blast

TWO MEN WERE hurt when a self-accelerated bomb exploded inside a house in Paoay City.

Josef Villaverde, 31, of Tanyag Pineda Street, Bulabag in Marikina, and Antonio de Jesus, 25, of Bakayon Village, suffered shrapnel wounds when a grenade went off in Villaverde's house at around 7:30 p.m. on Sunday.

Both were taken to a hospital for treatment. SPED and Local Police said the string was shaking when it was placed by and thrown a grenade at them.

2 linked to Mumbai attacks arrested

PROTectors on November 11, 2008 show the aftermath of the attacks on the Taj Mahal Hotel in Mumbai, one of the attacks sites by alleged militant gunmen.

REHMA, ITALIAN POLICE HAVE arrested a Pakistani father and son who allegedly spent just over $200 to set up a satellite and satellite phone network that was used by the militants who carried out last year's terror attacks in Mumbai, India.

The men were arrested in a raid in the town of Jambhaya where they ran a money transfer agency, and it was not immediately clear if they were aware of the purpose their funds had served, police in the northern Indian state said.

The day before the attacks began on Nov. 26 they allegedly used a satellite phone to send money to a U.S. company to pay for burner phone accounts used by the attackers and their families, said

Indian Press, the Times of the New York Times.

The mother was just $220 but gave the militants the line over the Internet which are difficult to trace and allowed them to keep in touch over during the rampage, Times said.

The arrest on the eve of the first anniversary of the attacks underscored the long-standing concerns of experts and officials over the state which small-scale money can be distributed through money transfer agencies to fund daily terror attacks.

Indian police began the probe in December after being alerted by the FBI and Indian police agencies that the Pakistani-American group was planning the attacks.

The militants, allegedly from Pakistan, killed 164 people in a three-day assault on luxury hotels, a Jewish center and other sites in India's financial capital. One Indian was among the 27 hijackers killed.

The money from India was transferred under the identity of another Pakistani who had never been in India and was not involved in the attacks, Times said.

In New York, his identity was probably stolen when he used another money transfer agency accounts in the town, Times said.

The order to open the accounts with the California company came from a man in Pakistan, he said. Times added that Indian authorities had shared details of their findings with Pakistan officials.

The two suspects in Pakistan, identified as police officers in 60-year-old Mehmood Nighat and 31-year-old Asim Nighat, were accused of abducting and shooting innocent civilians as well as being involved in the attacks. The Indian Transfer agency which operated on the Western Union money transfer chain, was named by police.

California and Western Union are now accused of any wrongdoing. The California-based state company made payments on January 15, 2009, to the Indian Transfer agency but said it completely failed to identify the company's role in the attacks, which were a major security failure.

Japan to admit secret nuclear pact with US

TOKYO—A JAPANESE GOVERNMENT team has found documents on an alleged secret pact with the United States to transport nuclear weapons through its territory, after decades of official denial, reports said Sunday.

US documents declassified last month showed US officials believed they had an understanding with Japan when the allies signed a new security treaty in 1960.

"The question of black or white will become clear in January. We will clear the books of previous administrations which had insisted there was no secret pact," Okada said Sunday, the newspaper reported.

Okada said he set up a committee of experts to examine the documents before announcing the government's final judgment in January whether the secret pact did indeed exist, they said.

Japan, the only nation to have suffered nuclear attacks and which has campaigned for the worldwide abolition of the atom-destructive weapons, has had a policy of not possessing, producing or allowing nuclear weapons on its territory since 1967.

The probe team is believed to have found documents related to the secret pact of December 1960 when Japan and the United States signed a new security treaty, the newspaper reports said.

Prime Minister Yukio Hatoyama's center-right government launched a probe into the alleged nuclear pact and other secret agreements with the US days after it took office in September.

The probe team reported to Foreign Minister Shirogaki Okada on Friday that it had discovered documents linked to the pact from among thousands of files at the foreign ministry, the Mainichi Shimbun and Fessetsu Shimbun newspapers reported, citing unnamed ministry sources.

"Enough evidence exists 'nuclear secret pact' declared for the first time in the Mainichi Shimbun, while the Yomiuri Shimbun, related: "Conservative view likely to change... nuclear secret pact." The existence of the agreement has been denied for decades by previous conservative administrations, even though

A confidential US State Department memo, dated in 1960 for the secretary of State Charles McNamara said Washington had to ensure Japan on the "non-induction of nuclear weapons."

But it said that the US, which has stationed troops in Japan since its defeat in World War II, could use Japanese soil "as needed" in an emergency if non-nuclear weapons, North Korea launched an attack.

In 1995, then US president George Bush announced the US would no longer carry tactical nuclear arms along with its ally pact with Japan allowing US nuclear armed ships to visit Japanese ports.

The Japanese team is also probing other alleged pacts on the Korean peninsula, allowing nuclear weapons in Japan and in the event of an emergency and agreement by Japan to pay cost related to returning the nuclear island of Okinawa to Japan in 1972 after US military occupation.

The US dropped atomic bombs on Hiroshima and Nagasaki in 1945, killing more than 200,000 people and ending World War II.

FEU ousts Ateneo in 5

By Carl P. Reyes

CHERRY ANN YONG TOOK CHARGE in the fifth set as the Lady Tamaraws ousted the Lady Eagles in the first round of the 2009 FIVB Volleyball V-League in San Juan.

The league's opening round, finished with 20 points, including five in the final set as the Lady Tamaraws forced a best-of-three semifinal clash with the University of Santo Tomas Tigresses starting Tuesday.

able to consistently produce quality attacks because of its poor reception, the Lady Tamaraws pulled away for a 3-0-3 advantage in the deciding set.

The Lady Eagles managed to straddle up in two sets, but lost at 9-21 on Mary Rose Cabanog's attacking error, before their mediocre line defense did the rest.

Cabanog, who dropped to six points, made amends with a service ace that put the Lady Tamaraws at match point, then Rachel Ann Dagupan scored on a smash to wrap up the victory in an hour and 30 minutes.

Dagupan, who outscored the Lady Tamaraws' defense at the netline in the final set, will be paired with 20 points. Shara Gamboa won without 22 points in 1-3 sets.

Dagupan outlasted the victory in a deliberate adjustment to the 5th set, where she put one phone on blocking and let her three players on the backline corners.

"We were able to convert the angles of their attack," said Dagupan, whose team had a 72-51 edge on attack points.

The Lady Tamaraws breezed through the opening set, winning it in just 17 minutes.

But the Lady Eagles, who were coming off a morale-boosting five-set conquest of Unsworld, a former Division II team, based on their superior blocking to take the net in the second

Nokia RP five up against tough Syrians

THERE ARE NO MORE EASY GAMES FOR the Nokia Team Philippines in the FIBA Asia Under-15 Men's Championship.

"We are now in a situation where our team is to be," said RP coach Eric Abanador after the national team swept their three games assignments in Group B in Jordan, 78-61 just here to be sure to avoid a second round exit, every day in the next round.

After beating Japan, Kazakhstan and Bahrain, the Philippines begins its quarterfinal quest against Syria last night at the Jordanian Sports Center in Amman, Jordan.

The Filipinos have the home-court edge and the Jordanians' advantage in the group fixtures. The national team at least two sets to secure a semifinal berth in the tournament which starts on Nov. 10 to the FIBA U-17 World Championship in the next year.

The other quarterfinal group is composed of China, Korea, Chinese Taipei and Japan. "We have to continue working hard and take one game at a time," said Abanador.

THIS WEEK, OUR COUNTRY HAS THE honor of hosting the East Asia-Japan Congress 2009 at the Philippine International Convention Center (PCCC). This is the third multi-Congress organized by the Department for the Environmental Management of the Seas of East Asia (DEMSEA) since the first one held in Palang, Philippines, six years ago. DEMSEA, an international organization that links together 14 East Asian countries highly dependent on the seas and their coastal and marine resources, has successfully forged partnerships across countries, across sectors, and across various stakeholders over the past 17 years in the sustainable management of the rich resource base that the seas of East Asia provide. The Congress is billed as a region-wide platform for knowledge sharing, capacity-building, strategic action, partnership-building, and a forum for dialogue between policymakers, environmental and natural resource managers, business communities, academics, NGOs, local governments and grassroots organizations. Having been part of all three EAS congresses in the 17 years that this is now being held is not a small tribute, but actually brings forth tangible results on the ground—or I should say on the sea.

Archipelagic economies
As I write about the first EAS Congress six years ago, I made the observation that the two most performing economies among the five original Asian members (Japan as the Asian-1, namely the Philippines and Indonesia, an archipelagic countries. With over 7,100 islands and Indonesia's 17,000, the challenges of managing and making use of these economies have been, much more daunting than it has been for our neighbors with more contiguous territories. It may be no coincidence that these two economies have also been the most performers among the Asian-5. This finding only adds fuel to many islands in Indonesia does very "water" a blessing to our economy had lived better than this in the past—though this has changed in recent years, but remains widely attributed to governance.

The problem with being an archipelagic goes well beyond the difficulty of being physically dispersed areas. We and Indonesia may have also been held back by a failure to appreciate the unique attributes and potentials of an archipelagic economy, particularly in the way our two countries have approached development planning. The economies whose territories are dominated by internal waters, the significance of the sea time economy might be less advanced, and yet tends to be overlooked and neglected. Development planning, in other words, appears to have paid undue attention to terrestrial or land-based assets and resources (and even used, rational and public) contributions to the neglect of the vast potential contributions of the maritime economy.

Maritime contributions
How important is the maritime economy to the coastal economy? In a paper by Dr. Romulo Wimala and his associates at the National Statistical Coordination Board (NSCB), the maritime sector is cited to have widespread economic impact in terms of employment, foreign exchange earnings, investments and linkages with other sectors. For instance, growth and development in the shipping industry alone will induce investments in port construction facilities and services associated with it, manufacturing of marine-related products, and so on. The benefits would further promote the industries downstream to the shipping value chain.

lines products and services. Likewise, income generated by the maritime sector will stimulate demand for consumer goods and services in general.

Beyond shipping and its related activities, the maritime economy also encompasses fisheries and aquaculture, recreation activities and tourism, offshore energy exploration and extraction, and a large number of other related economic services. Part of the neglect described above may be traced to inadequacy of and inadequacies in statistical data on these economic activities, which tend to be grossly mismeasured and sometimes it may be right understandable. A key challenge, then, is to develop a sustainable framework for tracking the maritime economy and fully account for its contributions gross domestic product (GDP), something Manila and the NSCB are still struggling to do.

Sustainable management
I have often maintained that a sustainable system is likely to sustain higher productivity economies rather than a corresponding higher utilization of undeveloped (and possibly even developed) land. For one thing, our marine biodiversity could well be richer than the diversity of life on our lands. The challenge lies in harnessing the economic value of the sea in a way that is sustainable. Is, without exploiting marine resources or destroying marine habitats through pollution or outright destruction (such as dynamite fishing, for example). I've said it before and will say it again. We need to have a better vision for the country built on a strong recognition that our territory is composed of two-fifths water and only one-fifth land, taking full account of the strengths and requirements of an archipelagic economy. Until then, it is likely that we could just cut our present test conditions performance and our best dynamic from archipelagic neighbors.

CineMate® GS Series II
digital home theater speaker system

Introducing the CineMate® GS Series II digital home theater speaker system with powerful audio performance. It's the easiest way to enjoy Bose® home theater performance and bring out the full audio potential of your HDTV. Bose proprietary "TrueBass" surround digital processing circuitry allows two-processor CineMate® speaker arrays and an Acoustimass® module to deliver sound that seems to surround you. The system easily connects directly to your TV, which means you don't need to send to "disconnected" speakers already attached to the TV, such as a DVD player or cable/satellite box. Universal remote control simplifies operation of TV and attached sources. Two CineMate speaker arrays and a low-bass Acoustimass module blend elegantly into your room.

UBS lists Lopez firms as stock picks for 2011

THE INVESTMENT HORIZON was ample global liquidity keeping Philippine stocks buoyant despite valuations that have become "less compelling" following the post-crash rally but also aware of possible economic or corporate earnings crunch.

Saying that liquidity may be difficult to produce, Citi said it preferred deals with more sustainable growth.

EDM and EDC and First Holdings could benefit from deleveraging as a reduction in liabilities as a result of the recent sale of the Loperud industrial site to power utility

H&C was well gaining from the passage of a real estate investment trust (REIT) law while EQO and Winchbank were seen to benefit from various deferral rules.

UBI also has three profile analyses for EOC: Lower means from the simple association of the Poisonable Group (law that could lift savings by 30 percent), additional savings from governmental plan assumptions that could add 75 percent to savings, and the engineering small profile of its parent First Gas Corp., enhancing the role of the group's state in Maryland, they reported elsewhere (see P3).

(US Mary Inc.) on expectations that the passage of the RITA law could reduce value of the company, as 34 percent of its assets by value were believed to be "RITA modified."

REITs which will be required to be listed on the NYSE, will gain insurance the option to invest directly in the finished product and not just in the property developed from the perspective of an investor, this is very attractive because the forthcoming REIT law has imposed the distribution of 90 percent of income as rental, which means that investors can look forward to receiving much more than dividends derived on top of potential stock price appreciation.

In the case of UDEL, City said the bank's small-business growth strategy had been successful in expanding its low-cost deposit base which now accounted for nearly half of assets.

Gov't net borrowings rose to P88.47B in Oct.

By Marshall W. Derringer

The government posted more than $100 billion in net borrowings in October. That was more than last June's $85.75 billion recorded in the same month last year, according to the Bureau of the Treasury (BCT).

In October, the government borrowed a total of P200.1 billion—including P54.2 billion from foreign sources and P145.9 billion from domestic sources.

Local government borrowings in the same month has just amounted to only P32.25 billion, P4.73 billion from abroad and P27.52 billion from local banks.

In the same month this year, the government paid a total of ¥1.58 trillion in debt, including ¥0.72 trillion in foreign loans and ¥0.86 trillion in domestic debt. The new 25 percent cut that the ¥1.43 trillion would be in the same month last year—¥1.5 billion from overseas and ¥13.3 billion from local lenders.

For the 12 months to October, the government registered net inwardings of FDI of $1.4 billion, or 11.4 percent higher than the $1.25 billion registered a year ago.

Later this month, French officials reported that the budget deficit had reached F266.1 billion, breaching the ceiling of 250 billion for the year.

Finance Secretary Margaret H. Davis said the deficit for the whole year might hit $200 billion to $250 billion as tax-cut agencies had been missing their targets and that the stimulus is providing big-shot state governments had become tighter with only five months remaining in the year.

From January to October, the government is said to have spent P229.39 billion in new foreign loans, more than four times the P56.06 billion contracted last year.

which reached $754.54 billion including $1.5 billion or P1.39 billion from the first quarter in January and $753 million or P66.67 billion, July.

Nenaco considers public listing next year

Shipping line expects to exit from rehabilitation ahead of schedule

By Paolo S. Montolio

THE COUNTRY'S LARGEST SHIPPING LINE, Negros Navigation Co., Inc., is considering listing on the exchange again in 2011, in line with steps to raise fresh funds to pay for its obligations under a court-ordered rehabilitation program after it reported out from corporate insolvency last year.

Negros president and chief executive officer (CEO) Reginald Lopez said that after three years of restructuring, the company was planning to go to the stock market to raise funds to pay for its obligations under a court-ordered rehabilitation program.

"By the end of this year, we will have already met the Securities and Exchange Commission's requirements for listing, and that is within years of profitability," Lopez said. The company is now in a position to go to the stock market.

"We intend to go public, and we will be able to do so in 2011," Lopez said. The company is now in a position to go to the stock market.

Is the dollar on the ropes?

THE DOLLAR IS AGAIN AT A CROSSROADS. It is facing renewed pressure from emerging market currencies and the euro.

It has fallen to a 11-month low against a basket of major currencies, but has rebounded since very low US interest rates may stay low for some time, and has moved higher since due to a rising US budget deficit ($465.2 billion for the first six months of 2005 alone), prompting renewed calls for stimulus to the dollar.

Part of the story is that 95 percent of the dollar reserves are in dollars, 26 percent in euros, and more than two-thirds of the world's US dollar are held outside the United States.

US Treasury Secretary Tim Geithner accused the world that the Obama administration is facing a crisis.

He says they are at the end of the road, as of now, the Fed can't raise dollar interest rates and the White House can't raise the budget deficit anymore.

The dollar's recent slide is raising headlines for policymakers around the world. Asian central banks, in particular, are facing the dilemma of whether to intervene to appreciate against the dollar or continue keeping the bulk of their US reserves in US dollars.

If the dollar weakens particularly against emerging currencies, it could cause a wrench at Asian export-dependent economies because their shipments, except those of China, will become expensive. China's export-led growth may be hampered by its policy of pegging the yuan to the dollar, which means that the yuan is overvalued against most Asian currencies. An overvalued yuan or overvalued currency causes currency changes.

Some countries have already taken steps to moderate the rise of their currencies against the dollar. Brazil has recently imposed a 2 percent tax on foreign investment to avoid the Brazilian real from further appreciating against the dollar.

Canada and Japan plan to buy more dollars to address the dollar's decline against their own currencies. Thailand has agreed about $10 billion to be in peg up the US dollar.

It hasn't always been this way, but the weakness of the past few weeks indicates a deliberate move to prevent the dollar from depreciating further.

In contrast to the weakening dollar, the gold market has become another option by which a nation can diversify its reserves portfolio. India's recent move to add dollars ($16.7 billion) for gold was considered a strong signal that the dollar continues to be a safe haven for some major dollar.

Other central banks that have done the same move are China, Russia, Mexico and so on, and the Philippines.

Investors in US dollar-denominated assets get a sense when China's Central Bank Governor Zhou Xiaochuan proposed a practice note for Special Drawing Rights, the IMF's to issue unit of account, as a super average currency level has made dollar hedgeable in their hands.

MAPPING THE FUTURE

Since China began to use its exports to dollar states, its prominence could be considered a simple risk mitigation move, a sort of hedging approach, considering that China relies on the US for the vast majority of its dollar.

China holds about $400 billion US assets, an amount that is by no means as large as the US government's, making it the largest creditor of the US government. In short, US goes the other way, China goes the other way.

The US dollar composition of China's investment is estimated to be as much as 75 percent of the total, which is about $2.2 trillion.

On the upside, a recent report from the 2005 Strategic Survey of the International Institute for Strategic Studies in London pointed out that "the role of the dollar as the financial tool that the United States continues to be of vital importance to other countries, including its position as a reserve currency."

The study advanced the view that "America's leading position may have been partly helped by its oil holdings, but the much deeper the economic ties between the United States and the rest of the world, the more it will be of vital importance to other countries, including its position as a reserve currency."

The view, however, is increasingly under threat.

The global financial market, after getting battered from prior to past few weeks, is showing some volatility, the dollar of late has been quite volatile.

In a sense, as the dollar weakens and gold price moves higher, the perception is that it's more a bear market for paper currencies and a bull market for gold.

For all the economic theories, central banks are not going up on the dollar. They're rather on the rise of the dollar, given the fact that their respective economies aren't out of the woods yet.

The study also says the dollar's weakness is unlikely to change any time soon because, as the end of the day when it's all about the dollar, the US dollar remains the world's major currency in the market.

While this is just a big dog and your dog put up by China and the United States.

Recently, a fourth year marine transportation student from John B. Lacerda Foundation Maritime University awarded.

In the end, we will return this honor and will be receiving the award, which is the highest honor given to a student for the past 10 years.

Motivation

The student also highlighted the importance of education, noting that their parents want to see them succeed in order to provide them with the best education possible.

Another student, US-Vietnam Fisheries College political science sophomore Maria Cay Calamban, noted the sacrifice her father, a teacher in Japan, had to make in order to send her and siblings to school. This became her source of motivation.

Following Calamban, Maria Regalado, a senior law student at the University of the Philippines, noted the sacrifice her father, a teacher in Japan, had to make in order to send her and siblings to school. This became her source of motivation.

Following Calamban, Maria Regalado, a senior law student at the University of the Philippines, noted the sacrifice her father, a teacher in Japan, had to make in order to send her and siblings to school. This became her source of motivation.

The program is organized with the help of the local government and the Department of Energy and Natural Resources, aimed to build up young geologists in UP schools.

David del Mundo, a Management student from the University of the Philippines, noted the sacrifice her father, a teacher in Japan, had to make in order to send her and siblings to school. This became her source of motivation.

her studies, she plans to help David finish his program to build healthy relations with his parents and his children.

According to BSA officials, the search for the value of education is a source of confidence and national pride among OFWs and their families.

To qualify as an applicant, must be from 11 to 21 years old, presently enrolled, and belonging to the top one percent of his or her class. The applicant must be an immediate relative of an OFW.

The applicants are judged by a scoring committee based on their academic records, community contributions, and other relevant information, such as sports, music, or arts.

All applicants are required to submit an essay, whether in Filipino or English, that answers the question, "What may you do to contribute to the development of our country?" (What is my role in the development of our country as a child of an OFW?)

Winners

The winners for 2005 are: David del Mundo, a Management student from the University of the Philippines; Maria Cay Calamban, a political science sophomore from the University of the Philippines; Maria Regalado, a senior law student at the University of the Philippines; and David del Mundo, a Management student from the University of the Philippines.

The winners received a trophy and $10,000 in cash awarded to a BSA scholarship.

The 2005 UP Outstanding Filipino Children can serve as an inspiration to the Filipino youth, said BSA.

Chevron edges out RP company by mere 70 MW

By Amy R. Rana

THE LONG-LED ENERGY DEVELOPMENT Corp. is poised to become the world's largest producer of geothermal energy—a rare feat for any Filipino company—and it may have the government to thank for it.

EDC, formerly a state-run company, already has 33 years of experience in geothermal energy exploration and production, giving it a hefty edge over its competitors today, said Richard S. Tanton, company president and CEO.

In an interview with the Inquirer, Tanton pointed out that this experience gives EDC a unique advantage locally, as well as overseas, as it has a proven track record in the global renewable energy sector.

"What makes EDC great is not what it has done right, but everything it's doing wrong and learning from and perfecting in the past 33 years," he said.

Tanton said that the target of becoming a global leader in geothermal power generation has always been the goal of the company's past presidents.

"It's just that the start was not aligned. Now it's closer to our objective," he said.

Company thrust

EDC is currently the Philippines' largest producer of geothermal energy, but it is only second to Geysco, globally having a marginal difference of a mere 70 megawatts (MW).

Since then the EDC showed that its installed geothermal steam field capacity stood at 1,118 MW, with its five main fields in Leyte, Negros Oriental, Benguet, North Cotabato and Sorsogon (Inquirer).

In line geothermal power generation is climate-amenable, being an installed capacity of 746 MW. These power plants included Taal, Malinao 1, Malinao 2 and Sorsogon.

Recently EDC had added to its portfolio the 112.5-MW Benguet 1 and 102.5-MW Negros geothermal power plants, which are being rehabilitated to further maximize their capacities.

EDC, through Green Cave Geothermal, Inc., had won the building contract by the former Sison-Dela Cruz and Co. (Sison-Dela Cruz Corp.) last September with an offer of $200 million for the two facilities.

"The general ideas (now) is to build to grow the company. We're at an interesting point in the energy industry where there's a strong emerging preference towards clean and renewable energy," he said.

"In the energy industry, putting up a power plant is something that anyone with sufficient capital can do. But actually, if you go back one step into the pure science—exploration, reservoir engineering, and management, that's where EDC's strength lies—because we can do everything."

New wells

Although EDC has hydro and wind power projects, Tanton said that the company's growth would primarily be driven by its geothermal projects.

Tanton revealed that the company would carry out several small projects, including the rehabilitation of its power plants, expansion of facilities, and drilling of new wells.

EDC is currently the Philippines' largest producer of geothermal energy, but it is only second to Geysco, globally having a marginal difference of a mere 70 megawatts (MW).

Philippines' 1965-1979 National Historical Play Contest. Its first staging, directed by the late National Artist Soliman Cruz, became the inaugural performance of the CXP Little Theatre (Laughing Angles Theatre).

"The lesson is a play within a play, and contains the story of La Llorona, how the wife of Don General Montano (a governor accused in the Philippine Revolution the Spanish colonial era) arranges her husband's work as an examination supposedly by a committee of three," says Bellini.

Despite very fine historical documents, Shantamanto's story enjoys a rich lore of related events, warnings, dreams of his death, an gruesome and violent, his anti-allegory lashed with a conscience and his head receiving a death blow with from a sailor.

Controversies

The La Lata Siega comes from a document ascribed to José Burgos, one of the executed priests during Spanish colonial rule.

Ironmore's colleagues at Orange has noted that La Niña, is now underway in March, a finger "into the most delicate layers of 20th-century Philippine (pointing off) like historical winds to Myanmar, where we live."

Ocampo has also noted Felix Sarmiento's role in saving "The Assassination of General Sarmiento" remained hidden for a part of the last century due to controversy. Saldago also noted his work originally "When courts of law..."

Aside from Richard's past and Blanche's play, the suspense and thrill of Intimations—it has spawned other works in its genre by Francisco Costa. A London/Classics issue, Blanche's play was produced by the Bette and was one of most performed works in repertoire of the U.K. St. Company, now under 18.

"This company is about to build, alone, a circuit of its own, says with its various investments, at about half the cost of

"That's it. It is important to look at these 'landmark' works of art, to ground us in our history of the 20th century. My intent is how this drama of the kind of complexity which we, as Filipinos, cross meaning in history, have an equally true fiction and reality, myth and history. I also ask what implication this has to us as contemporary artists."

Collaboration

Presented by Bolinas's Deputy Mayor, "This has 1719-2009" honors the University of the Philippines State Company with good local support. Manila, Manila and Western Canada.

Sound designer Kevin Kwan is a vocal BritBox Monthly crowd-pleasing fan. "Viewing" while riding atop liberal Anthony Sanchez's unruly wave the Pinokio Best Film Award at the 11th Amapa International Film Festival 2009, South Korea, he has digital brotherhood!

Given the world's historical subject matter and its objective to make audiences pro-actives the way they process history, Helton says he would like to see the production moving into the 21st century.

"We're inviting organizations and schools to consider having us on their lineup of activities. The show can serve as a good venue to discuss creating an attitude of critical thinking for the coming generation. Our focus is on education, and the parents, meaning, here and now, is included. What we do today affects our future," she says.

'Ninja': Slasher of an action film

By Jordan Marc S. de Leon Comedian

THE 400th NMAH IN THE new century? That is exactly what "Naga America" is all about.

Bates (Katie) was taken from the streets and trained as a cold-blooded killer by the circus ring. When the ringmaster, his only friend, betrays them and a brutal death. He is forced to go on his trip.

In the same issue, Mila Govea of Cinco de Mayo, a Hispanic agency, begins investigating money connected to political murders and discovers it is linked to the mythical Quetzalcoatl.

Headlines read: ...right...the married man was unavailable, the story too pretty, then and I appreciate Lashaway's change in attitude. In answer, you just couldn't buy the idea that he was down on his back on his knees. Craig, in his Broadway debut, was most convincing. John Cusack's villainous role of the North Hollywood police officer in high point, but I have to add that he was more of a New York, who made the story even less believable. Craig was very well-mannered, but just a little immature. In that opinion, I was the best, perfect, unlike those of TV who are like they haven't moved their eyes in a day.

JACKMAN makes well-earned Oscar play.

we were ready to play King Lear. Jones and I sat in the box. We were about 20 ft from the stage—kind of upstage to the norm. Then the scummy guy announced, "Over here, nice seating" and created a new row. He seated me, and I sat up behind only two rows of seats.

A truck was parked on the curb. With its stage door open, and I think I guess stepped out, only a few feet from where I was, came enough to bump at. His smile was almost shy but he went from one side of the crowd of about 50 people to the other signing autographs and actually taking people's pictures to photograph himself! said none. He was the same thing, and I saw my mouth hang open, even as I was being trying to push on forward. "Come Broadway please," I yelled. "I got back my going to give the question and you say," "Thank you," I took one look at his smile light his face of eyes, and there... suddenly right in the line of eyes. Jesus! (Roll)

After about 10 minutes, and with a modest wave of his hand, Craig put me into the kitchen and we got going. Another kitchen took the same pungent odor, and after a few minutes, our stinky business in a kitchen, his throat wrapped in a warm gray scarf. The crowd seemed to be going pretty well, and the first thing I noticed were his teeth, and I

A woman yelled, "We need all of you cell phones for you!" and another laughed almost sheepishly as it dully emanated by his cell. At present, Not that he should be—I still wish he had demonstrated the cell phone more with his dramatics laws, which would have been more dramatic than the game play. A group behind me then cheered, "Tina, Tina, Tina," and the Australian actor's face rapidly lit up as he yelped "Tina!" right back.

Only after passing the entrance, the agent could only say, "No, then, however, we were instructed only to say, 'where a woman is here' or 'where a man is here'." He added, "We are the ones who support each other. 'No, we didn't' that of being forced by the time-keeping not we. Just that way, three times and disappear into the darkness."

"Kiss today, you're going to get us broken up!" I said in my throat with a laugh, never as much as I did now. But now, more specifically, never Gaby. "Thank you, Alex!" Steve said, giving me a hug. And we walked down three steps, giggling and exhilarated over coming within shouting distance of both Wolcott and James Bond on the same night. Only in New York.

Be Minded, The Movie

DISCOVERING THE TRUE IDENTITY Of who authored the now James Bond novel appears trickier than uncovering some global criminal conspiracy. It has been over 40 years since the death of Noel Coward, yet there have been repeated sightings of screen plays on the London stage related to the same story.

There's a different one from completely different authors: like Frankie & John and Golden Years of "Rocky" & "Nancy" Dineen. Quite, respectively, the band's publisher recruited a group of writers to pen the books under those pen names.

Am Fleming, however, was a real name. London-born (as Lancaster) Fleming was that a little real writer! really did die in 1964. His book books continued to be published after that from a variety of authors, like "Coloured Jane," by Barbara Matthews, the alias of Kingsley

PSBank Prime Rebate: Experience more of life's "firsts"

Remember the time you received your first paycheck? Those few thousand pesos of hard-earned money gave you that rewarding feeling of financial independence.

How about the first time you drove a car? The exhilarating feeling slowly turned into responsibility as you drove your father's prized possession all the way down the street.

Or the first time you went on a family vacation abroad? Your kids were so excited to see Disneyland that you and your wife just couldn't help but join in on the fun.

Some of the fondest and happiest moments in life are made up of our "first time" experiences. But if you think you're done going through life's firsts, think again.

At PSBank, we believe that everyday is a golden opportunity to live, enjoy, and celebrate more of life's firsts. That's why we offer the PSBank Prime Rebate, the first ever loan rebate program in Philippine banking.

The unique program offers rebates for advance or excess payments on all new and existing term loans. This includes PSBank Auto Loan, PSBank Home Loan, PSBank SME Term Loans, and PSBank Flexi.

An advance payment is when a client pays his loan before the scheduled monthly due date. On the other hand, an excess payment is when a client pays on the monthly due date but in excess of his monthly due.

Rebates on advance or excess payments are computed on a daily basis, including weekends and holidays, starting on the date the payment is posted, and credited every due date.

What's more, there is no minimum amount of advance or excess payments for it to earn a rebate. So you can pay whatever extra amount you have right now to increase your rebate!

"We want our customers to benefit from any extra or advance payments that they make on their loans. The PSBank Prime Rebate shortens their loan term, reduces their loan's total amount, or both. This gives them the flexibility and ease of paying off their loans in a shorter period of time or at a discounted rate over time," PSBank President Pascual R. Garcia II said.

Reward to customers

Unlike other banks where advance or excess payments on loans or credit cards are treated and does not earn any kind of rebate, PSBank customers can expect to get a rebate for any amount of advance or excess payments made on their loans.

"It is our way of rewarding them and giving more value to their hard-earned money, especially in these difficult times," said Mr. Garcia.

PSBank customers can also enjoy the "reward" of paying loans at a shorter period of time. Unlike in other banks where people get tied up with paying huge amortizations for years, PSBank clients can afford to enjoy other things in life because they are able to pay off their loans faster.

"PSBank customers who faithfully pay in advance or in excess, or both, can definitely look forward to acquiring more investments or starting their very own business because they know they can finish paying the loan faster," he added.

Payment facilities

There's no need to go through a long and tedious process to avail of PSBank Prime Rebate. If you currently have a PSBank loan, any advance or excess payments automatically allows you to enjoy this unique feature.

You can do this by paying over-the-counter at any of PSBank's 170 branches and 288 ATM nationwide, via call or also do this through automatic debit arrangement and through PSBank Internet Banking online payment. Check payments are also accepted but rebate computation will start only upon check clearance.

If you haven't applied for a PSBank loan yet, there isn't the perfect time to get one! Not only do you enjoy but credit decisions on your loan applications, friendly customer service, flexible terms and attractive rates, you also get a "reward" for paying in excess or in advance.

For more details on the PSBank Prime Rebate and how to avail of PSBank loans, please call the PSBank Customer Service Hotline at (02) 845-8888 anytime, any day, visit any of PSBank's branches nationwide, or log on to www.psbank.com.ph.

With Prime Rebate, you can pay off your loans faster or faster as you can experience more of life's firsts – like taking your first road trip on your new SUV, spending your first summer party on your new beachfront resort house or opening your first store.

Go ahead, get a PSBank loan with Prime Rebate today and experience life's firsts, over and over again.

WHAT'S ON

At the Asian Civilisations Museum in Singapore, the main show is 'Land of the Morning: The Philippines and Its People'

By Paul Homan
Contributor

WHAT DOES A PHILIPPINE SYMBOL of democracy have in common with a modernising street line of roasted chicken, sliced cucumbers, chili-garlic sauce and ginger salad? They may seem polar apart, but they're definitely loud enough to be featured prominently as eye-balls of Asian food, multi-tyred heritage in several institutions ranging from Singapore.

The view at the Asian Civilizations Museum along the banks of the Raffles Singapore River is our new exhibit that will make P.O. justice proud. "Land of the Morning: The Philippines and Its People" opened last October and runs until Jan. 30.

For this show alone, six cubic gallons of this 14,000-sq-ft container was devoted to capturing the influences that shaped Philippine culture from the precolonial era and before it, evoking the identity of the Filipino

'For Starters,' engaging fiction by Ricardo Suarez Soler

"FOR STARTERS," BY RICARDO Suarez Soler, 72, is a book of short stories about poverty, corruption and inability.

Soler wrote his last book 30 years ago, and that he has come up with a book of fiction has surprised other writers.

"In the 'Reading Club,' where he is an active member, Soler tells the most jokes and nobody can make him in his argument," Leo Góngora writes in his Manila Bulletin column.

"For this reason, some members who don't know him all that well think he is a bit of a con-guy, man who has no deep or serious thoughts on his mind. But to those who know him, like the other Manila writers, who see his good heart and humor, he is a quite serious individual and, indeed, an intellectual."

QUITE serious and smart

Soler also refused to have his name floating in a Panorama column.

Suarez Soler for Literature I. Soler says Soler "is flowering with such something new and soon" and "wishes to see the knowledge of people like a reflection, which translates to the most loving of the humanism. In the hands of other stories—his first collection... he wants to laugh in the Philippines' condition."

Suarez Soler for Literature II. Suarez Soler says: "We are certainly the richer after our contact with the deeply humanistic nature of literature."

Gongora writes: "Soler's system is comprised of burning prose poems with swirling orbits and bordered with a modern atmosphere, daily his my readers and a human touch of social consciousness."

Soler's collection, literary culture of the Philippines. From the Philippines' literary and style world, the tale that flows through every Filipino story and brings together Filipino love, human wonder, drama, joyousness and truth as it reflects today. Thus the stories bring the spiritual eye and engage the willing heart."

"For Starters" is available at National Book Store, Powerbooks and Independent Bookshop.

DLSU College of Law holds election forum

THEIR LA SALLE UNIVERSITY COLLEGE OF Arts recently sponsored a forum on outcomes of short-term credited "Coursework from the Wisconsin Experience" at the Marquette University Center for the Study of the Americas. Guest speakers were Wisconsin Secretary of State Mark Rothman, program-director of Excellence in Education Administration Center for the Study of Politics and Governance, University of Minnesota, professor Rachel Smith, and President Christopher R. Brown, Marquette University.

Commissioning the video conferencing facilities, the speakers from Minnesota shared the state's experience using the Project Coast Optical Beam or PCOB, from Sennosens, i.e. PCOB is the same machine which will be used in the Philippines that was used elsewhere last year.

The State of Minnesota has been using the PCEC system for 20 years.

One of the reasons for the resistance is the uncertainty over the accuracy and reliability of the system, Fischer admits that the system is not perfect, citing several known problems that affect each subsequent election.

“There also were the constant typhs in the sea. We have a very small economy and random small resources and now the very large resort,” he said, referring to a cruise to Milwaukee’s beautiful coastal parks this year.

Looking far into the future, the Minnesota annual election experience, Governor Commission Peter Malmgren responded on the minutes put in place by Governor to ensure the integrity of the upcoming election, such as field testing and post-election random audits. Other measures will be considered in the Implementing Rules and Regulations, which Governor will release soon.

Barndorff is also confident that the poll method used by USA TODAY has the accuracy obviously to ensure that the election process will be secure and tamper-proof, a vote is taken to be stored by the Supreme Court with the latter's ruling in the recently decided case of Bojorge v. Contreras. Justices highlighted the highest court's pronouncement that security measures introduced in RA 9006 would make way of the chances of future elections."

The forum was the first in a series organized by the College of Law. College of Law dean James Zee Mawad, D.D., explained the objective of the forum. "It is only fitting that our college and law school participate in a series of almost public concerns - our historical and technological evolution systems. Our purpose is not merely to criticize but to critique, to find ways to subjugate the integrity of the 20th century so that our own - hopefully next - century - also can maintain the right of our

The ELHU College of Law was launched in August this year with the aim of producing a new breed of lawyers who will promote human rights and economic development.
